NSW Research Seminar Sunday 27th October

Society of Australian Genealogists

The Program

1. Introduction to NSW research
2. Getting the most out of the NSW State Archives website
3. Using the Collections of the SAG for NSW research
4. NSW Land Records and Maps

The Sessions and Speakers

IMPORTANT: New South Wales originally included the areas we now know as Victoria, Tasmania, Queensland, Australian Capital Territory and New Zealand – what you will learn today can also help you with your research in these States, Territory and Country.

1. Introduction to NSW research: Susie Zada

This session looks at key dates and resources for NSW research including newspapers on Trove, Government Gazettes, FamilySearch, The National Archives (UK), National Archives of Australia and local societies. Susie has been researching her family history since 1965 – all her ancestors were in New South Wales.

2. Getting the most out of the NSW State Archives website: Heather Garnsey

The NSW State Archives Collection is the largest collection of records relating to the history of NSW and the lives of its people. This session looks at how to make the most of this website – using the online indexes, the research guides and catalogue to locate items of interest. Heather has been Executive Officer of the Society of Australian Genealogists since 1988.

3. Using the Collections of the SAG for NSW research: Danielle Lautrec

The Society of Australian Genealogists has a unique collection of manuscript and image material relating to NSW, including original cemetery registers, birth, death and marriage records and much more. Our online MIDAS catalogue allows researchers to readily identify items we hold, and this session will focus on what we have and how to find it. Danielle is the Education Officer and Archives Officer at SAG.

4. Historic Land Records and Maps in NSW: Susie Zada

This session will show how to find land records and maps in New South Wales. Susie has been the researcher and historian on numerous Heritage Studies and understands the importance of these resources to family history research.

Bonus for all attendees

Attendees at the Seminar will receive a show bag, an archive box, and an archival quality plastic bag donated by the Public Record Office Victoria. Also a large selection of second-hand family history books will be on sale.
